

Conservation Proverbs

His wife makes a crust of bread perhaps the war.
 Put in food for fighters—save it.
 But, study, and keep the wolf from the door of the world.
 Give the food and help the fighter fight.
 Over-eating is leading aid to the enemy.
 It is better to send supplies to the allies than to send them to the enemy.

INDUSTRIAL CLUB WORK IN THE
SCHOOLS OF THE COUNTY TO BE EXTENDED AND IMPROVED
DURING COMING YEAR

Sheep raising is to be another feature of Industrial Club work among the school children of the county during the coming year, according to County School Superintendent Edna Wells.

Although a great deal of efficient work was done this last year by these clubs it is the intention of those at the head of the movement to profit by the experience of the past, and to introduce measures which will get better results in the future.

From now on the different clubs will be started in sections of the county to which they are adapted especially. The stock raising clubs will be started in the country devoted principally to this industry, and the same is to be true of garden production, etc. The final reports are to be sent in earlier this year.

It is the intention to have every club member visited at some time by either the state or college leaders, who will inspect the work of the student and advise him regarding his efforts. Clubs in sewing, baking, etc., are to be formed for the girls. An effort is also to be made thru the county schools to urge the purchase of the war thrift saving stamps by the pupils. The advantages of saving to assist the government as well as themselves at this time is to be kept before them at all times.

LOCAL RELIEF
CORPS PRAISED

VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR THINKS
KLAMATH FALLS HAS CAUSE
TO FEEL PROUD OF LOYAL RELIEF CORPS

The open meeting of the installation of officers of the Relief Corps at the Odd Fellows hall Monday evening gave me a surprise to see such a large body of young and middle-aged women that make up the Woman's Relief Corps of Klamath Falls, of about 114 members. I hardly thought so many loyal and patriotic women could be found here, and the graceful and pleasing manner in which they conducted the work of the order was a pleasant surprise. The installing of the officers was a great credit to them, and Klamath Falls should be proud of this bunch of women.

During the late Civil War there were no such organizations as the Relief Corps or the Red Cross. However, the North was filled with loyal women, and there were organizations in nearly every city and village, the Ladies or Soldiers Aid societies.

Everybody was invited to attend and to contribute 10 cents or more for the cause. At these meetings there was generally a program of music and singing of patriotic songs and a donated lunch for all.

Some of the young ladies would take their fathers' teams and go from house to house among the farmers soliciting potatoes, cabbages and other vegetables to be sent to the boys in the South.

Soon after the close of the war the G. A. R. posts were organized throughout the North, and then the Woman's Relief Corps came into existence. For the past fifty years these women have been loyal to the flag, and have been ever ready to give a helping hand to support the G. A. R. and to see to the welfare of the old soldiers.

I, as an old soldier, highly appreciate their work of loyalty and kindness, and I think all Klamath can feel proud of this organization.—A Newham.

Moving Pictures

"Cy Whittaker's Ward," the Perfection picture manufactured by Thos. A. Edison, Inc., and distributed by George Kleine system, will take its place with "Way Down East" and "The Old Homestead" in the annals of American rural drama. The story hinges on the contest between a grafting politician and a retired sea captain, who had returned to settle in his boyhood's home, bringing with him the honesty and love of justice of the sea-faring man. There is a tender and appealing love story, friendship and bitter enmity among the local characters, and the affection of Captain Cy's ward for him and his for her, that gives the story gripping touches of human interest. William Wadsworth is inimitable in the role of the bluff, honest, kind hearted old sea captain and Shirley Mason, the little Edison star, is appealingly charming and lovely as Emily Thomas, Cy Whittaker's ward. This Perfection picture will be shown at the Temple tonight.
